LEXINGTON -- Terry Lee Garber, 51, of Sullivant Avenue, Columbus, and formerly of Lexington, died Saturday, Feb. 12, 2005, in The Ohio State University Hospital after a short illness.

He was born October 21, 1953 in Mansfield to Larry Garber and Patricia (Swimmley) Garber Dutil.

Terry had lived and worked in Columbus for many years, and leaves behind many good friends and caregivers at his home on Sullivant Avenue.

Terry was a joyous person to be around. Like his grandfather Garber, he never met a stranger, and never forgot one, either. He so enjoyed his family of cousins which included: John Allen Garber, Matthew Garber, Lester Beasley, Randy Beasley, Steven Beasley, Daniel Beasley and their families, and his special little buddy, Zachary Beasley.

One of the highlights of Terry's life was staying and visiting with Aunt Jane and Uncle Phil. He provided many happy memories at holidays and family events.

Terry learned to love the Lord and accepted him as his Savior and Provider. He never was happier than when he got up in church and sang a song about Jesus with his best friend Phil Beasley - they truly loved one another.

He is survived by his mother of Norwalk; uncle and aunt, John and Lydia Garber of Lexington, aunt and uncle, Jane and Phil Beasley; cousins and extended family.

Terry was preceded in death by his father; his grandparents, Lester and Frances Garber; uncle, Jim Garber; and aunt, Ruth Ann Garber.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, Feb. 17, 2005 at 12 noon in the Lexington Avenue Snyder Funeral Home. Co-Pastor Lou Frontz will officiate. Burial will follow in Mansfield Memorial Park. Friends may call at the funeral home the hour prior to the funeral.

Yesterday marked the anniversary of the nation's worst school bus disaster. A disaster that happened right here in Floyd County, a mere three miles from the county seat, when the lives of 26 children and their bus driver were claimed by the muddy waters of the Big Sandy River.

Jackie Branham Hall, of Spurlock, was 13 years old at the time of the tragedy. She attended Prestonsburg Elementary School, along with many of the children who were on that bus. At the age of seven, Hall says that she had a dream that a school bus was falling from the sky - a dream that so disturbed her that she never forgot it. "When I heard about the bus wreck, it was just like something hit me smack dab right in the middle of the eyes. That dream came right back to my mind," she said.

In the years that followed, Hall took it upon herself to gather together a scrap book of newspaper articles and any bits of information pertaining to the accident. As an adult, she searched court records and interviewed survivors of the crash, as well as the families of the victims. "So many people don't like to talk about it," Hall said. "For one, there has been so much written that was in error, along with a lot of speculation...And there's just a lot of guilt, though it wasn't anybody's fault. People are real careful about what they say and those who survived are very protective of one another, as well as protective about the memories of the classmates who didn't."

Hall, through her relentless checking of detail after detail, wanting to ensure that every fact contained in her book, "Portrait of a Disaster: A pictorial history of the 1958 school bus disaster," can be backed up as truth, has thereby gained the trust of both the survivors and the families of those that perished.

Today, we share with you the story of that Black Friday morning as told to Hall by survivor Martha Burchett Marsh, Donald "Dootney" Horn, and several others she has interviewed throughout the years:

"Fifty years have passed but not the pain of that Black Friday. At 5:30 a.m., on February 28, 1958, coal miner Banner Burchett climbed into his pickup truck. On his way to work at Skyline Coal Co., in Evanston, Burchett reached across his front seat in search of his carbide light. The left front tire of his truck dropped off the pavement as he reached for his light, causing his pickup to slide into the ditch along U.S. 23, between Knotley Hollow and Lancer.

Donald "Dootney" Horn, on his own way to work at Horn Brothers Junk and Salvage Co., located at Sugarloaf, stopped to inquire about the ditched pickup. The two men decided to remove the truck from the ditch and park it across the road by the home of Bennie Blackburn.

Horn backed his tow truck into the Knotley Hollow turnoff just as Floyd County School Bus No. 27 pulled off the road at Burchett's house to pick up the eight children who were waiting there to board.

Horn pulled out around the bus and proceeded northward back to the ditched pickup. School Bus No. 27 pulled out behind him.

Those on the bus have said that as bus driver John Alex DeRossett shifted gears and picked up speed, all seemed well. Not one surviving child reported noticing a problem with any of the previous stops and starts along the way.

DeRossett was well into his second run of the morning as he picked up the 40 children from the Emma, Cow Creek and Sugarloaf areas. It was approximately 8:05 a.m. when he picked up the waiting eight children at Knotley Hollow.

As the bus pulled out behind Horn's wrecker, survivors remember that they and their friends and classmates were engaged in lively chatter. It was Friday, the week almost over and many were looking forward to attending the evening's ballgame and the luxury of sleeping late the following morning. Spirits were high as the bus rolled along. Some, sitting on the right side of the bus, remember that they were watching the rising waters of the Big Sandy as the bus traveled along. Others have reported noticing and discussing the ditched pickup that lay ahead.

Martha Burchett, Joyce McPeck and Emogene Darby were studying for an upcoming typing test to be administered later that morning.

Martha, Emogene and Joyce were the best of friends, often staying all night with one another, playing records and learning the latest dance steps; exchanging clothes so they would have something different to wear the next day. "We'd study together and help each other with chores," Martha later said. Martha also recalls that when the girls dated, they would have to double date because each of them had parents who were very strict. "But we always had a good time together," she said.

Martha belonged to the Freewill Baptist Church and taught Sunday School for a youth group. "I attended regularly and I believe that is why God saved me," she said. Martha later reported that as she bobbed adrift on the swollen river waters that she prayed each second to be saved from the river's clutches.

Martha had left home early that morning to join Joyce at her house at the mouth of Cow Creek. Joyce wasn't feeling well that day and had not dressed for school. Joyce had planned on skipping school that day, until Martha reminded her that they had an important typing test that morning.

"She borrowed my fur collar and got dressed and we caught the bus at James "Beadle" Goble's grocery store," she said. The three Goble children were also waiting there for their bus.

"I took a seat with Emogene next to the window. Joyce sat in the seat next to the window behind us," Martha said.

The driver made his usual stops but after turning right out of Knotley Hollow, survivors report that along the way he turned the wheels to the left as he approached the site where the ditched pickup and tow truck were and that he never straightened the bus back up again. "He just gripped the steering wheel and started to push the brake and then he started hollering, 'Oh, no, oh, no,' and then we were plunging down the hill into the swelling waters," Martha related in her interview.

Martha said that she remembered crying out, "Oh, my God!" and that everyone around her were screaming and crying out. "The bus hit the water and it was like a big hole started to swallow us up," she said. "Water started rushing in through the windows and doors and kids were running back and forth kicking and screaming and pushing, trying to get out of the doors and windows. I could feel myself touching people and I was also kicking and fighting desperately to get out," Martha recalled. "It was the worst feeling I have ever had...knowing that everyone on the bus was also fighting for their lives. They were pulling and tugging at me and all I could do was try and save my own life. The bus was almost under water. I just kept kicking and jumping and fighting until I made my way out," she said.

Martha recalls that the swift moving water probably helped to wash her out the rear emergency door along with several others. She reports that when she finally came to the top of the water, Dootney Horn grabbed her by the hair and pulled her over to the side of the riverbank.

I could hardly breathe, she said. "I was shivering from the cold water and for days I was in shock. Every night when I'd close my eyes to go to sleep, I would see the bus plunging down the hill and I'd wake up screaming...I dreaded seeing the next day arrive, knowing that my best friends were gone."

Martha reports that she attended the funerals of her friends, as well as the funerals of the Goble children.

"That was a horrible time for me," she said. "The first day back at school was horrible. When the bus driver passed all those stops where we picked up my girlfriends and the others who were no longer waiting, it was horrible for me. I'd close my eyes when we'd pass the accident site.

"The kids at school kept asking me what happened, what had made the bus go into the river. They'd ask me how many friends I lost. It got so bad that the teachers had to order the kids not to mention the bus wreck. It was a great tragedy that we will never forget."

Some facts that the author of "Portrait of a Disaster" would like to mention are:

There were 48 children and one driver on board bus No. 27. 26 children and the bus driver drowned - a total of 27 lives taken. 22 children survived the crash.

The children were all from the Emma, Cow Creek, Sugarloaf and Knotley Hollow areas.

One child, Doris Faye Burchett, was not a regular on the bus. She had spent the night before with friend, Katie Jarrell.

The driver of the wrecker was Donald Lawrence "Dootney" Horn.

William Edward (Bill) Leedy, age 15, was credited with opening the rear emergency door. He died in 2006 from cancer.

"I Knew in My Heart." For unaccountable reasons (so unaccountable that his friends suspect a heart attack), De-rossett did not slow down. Instead, the bus rammed the wrecker, knocked it 60 ft. The bus itself lurched, swayed, tipped for a moment at the top of the embankment, then slithered through a grove of willow trees into the river. It hung for agonizing minutes in 3 ft. of water-long enough and shallow enough for 13-year-old Bill Leedy to kick open the rear emergency door, push smaller children out, then escape himself. Other passengers frantically rolled down windows and crawled out. Altogether 20 children got free before Big Sandy's heavy current swept the bus like a little log into deeper water, and closed over the scream's of the children trapped inside. Among them: all three of Cow Creek's Gobies.
